

Go Bush at the Botanic Garden

Wild spots to explore

Acer saccharinum

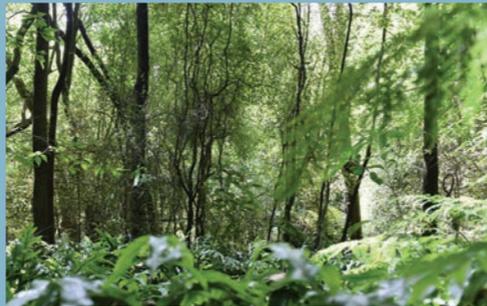

Amanita muscaria

1 Fern Gully

About a minute's walk from the aviary, Fern Gully is a shady secret nudging beneath Opoho Road. A single track winds its way through the welcoming coolness, passing ferns ranging from forest floor to tree ferns.

4 Little Bush

In the middle of the Botanic Garden you can feel as if you're in the middle of the bush. This tiny patch links the aviary and Mediterranean Garden. A long term scientific study is investigating the changes happening in here over time.

A selection of the images courtesy of the Otago Daily Times

Hound's Tongue Fern

2 Lovelock Bush

It's amazing how nature can heal itself in 130 years. Lovelock Bush used to be grazed by deer but now is a visible example of the regrowth process – tall kanuka protect regenerating native bush below.

3 Rhododendron Dell Bush

This bush is home to a silent survivor of the olden days. A big broadleaf tree remains from pre-Pakeha days, in the board-walked gully beneath the Cherry Walk.

Rhododendron 'Marion'

5 Hillside Bush

Long, flat sections of track take you through this massive bush patch on the side of a hill. At the bottom, riverside tracks go to grassy picnic spots that soak up the sun.

Track Accessibility Key

- Green: Easy: Flat, good surface.
- Orange: Medium: Sloped, rough, uneven surface
- Red: Hard: Steep, steps, loose surface

0 50 100 150m
Approximately five minutes' walk

DUNEDIN BOTANIC GARDEN

Picnic by the Plants

Favourite and hidden picnic spots at Dunedin Botanic Garden

2 New Zealand Native Lawn

This flat, manicured lawn, near the upper garden carpark, is so beautiful it is popular for weddings. Check out the divaricating lancewoods that start life as twisted and prickly then grow to graceful trees.

1 North Asian Lawn

A wee gem, this private lawn has views to Flagstaff and is bordered by plants from Japan, Korea, and China. It's an easy, flat walk from the intersection of Signal Hill Road and Lovelock Avenue.

4 Arboretum

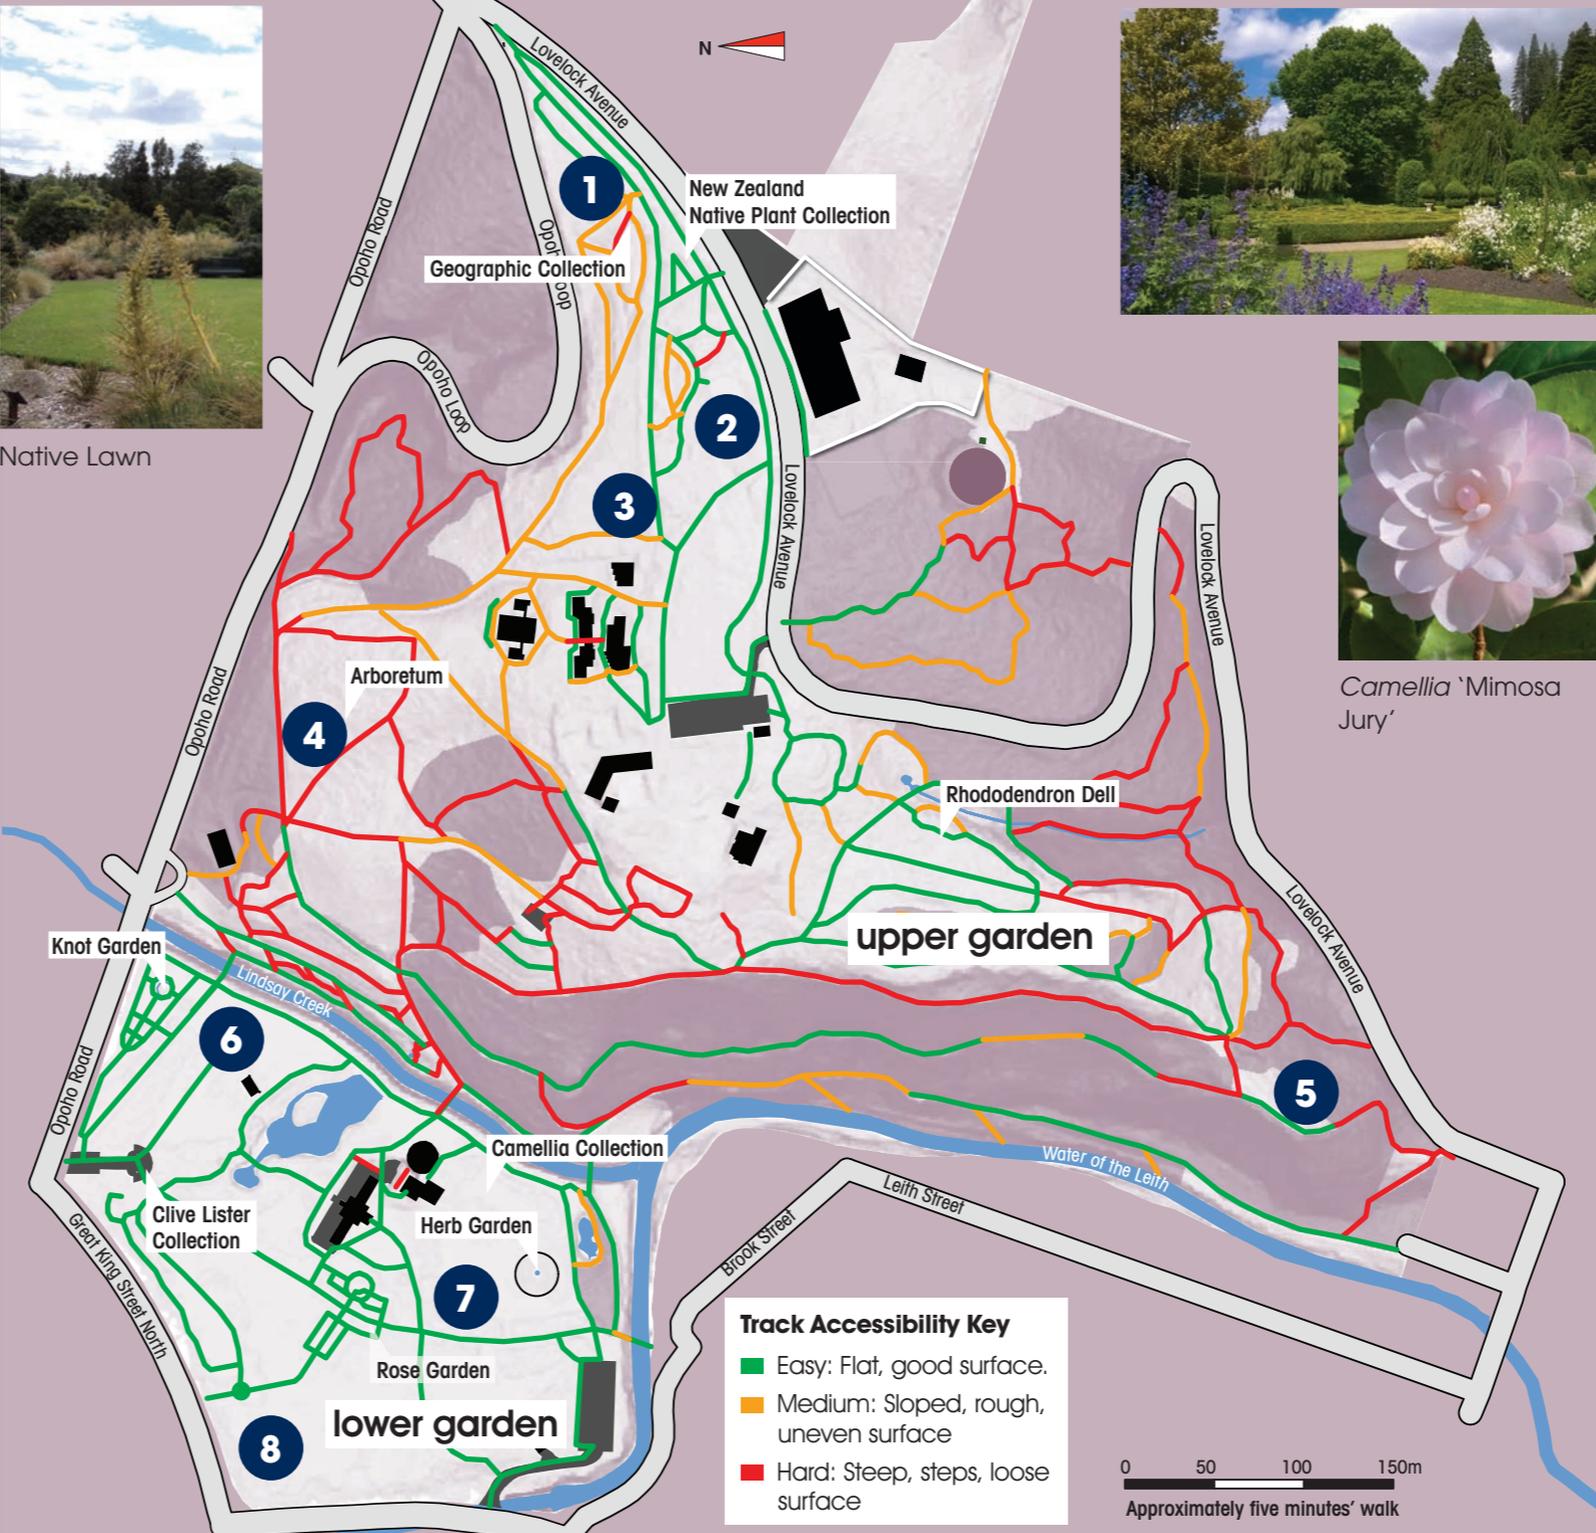

With tall trees and open, grassy glens, the arboretum is wild and beautiful - find your own secret spot. The arboretum is a five minute walk from mid-Opoho Road or park in the upper garden carpark.

5 Rhododendron Dell South Lookout

A flat grassy area, The Point offers views for miles and instant access to the woodland tracks of the wild, forested end of the Rhododendron Dell. A woodchip track off lower Lovelock Avenue gets you there in minutes.

3 Friendship Lawn

Sloped towards the sun, this large lawn is surrounded by exotic species from all around the world. From the upper garden carpark, follow the signs to the Geographic Collection.

Track Accessibility Key

- Green line: Easy: Flat, good surface.
- Yellow line: Medium: Sloped, rough, uneven surface
- Red line: Hard: Steep, steps, loose surface

0 50 100 150m
Approximately five minutes' walk

Native Lawn

6 Lawns

Just by the main gates there are some interesting places that are fun to explore. The Clive Lister Garden uses tall plants to create the feeling of being in a room filled with colour and texture. The nearby Knot Garden is a copy of the one at Shakespeare's garden and looks like a mini maze.

Camellia 'Mimosa Jury'

7 Herb Garden Lawn

Tea is made from a plant that grows beside this lawn - Camellia sinensis, in the species border of the Camellia Collection. The fascinating Herb Garden has labels describing how these plants help people.

8 Lower Garden Trees

By the rose garden are huge expanses of lawn, offering plenty of space for running and playing. Mature specimen trees have interesting labels and create a graceful, park-like atmosphere.